What is Keys to the Streets?

Keys to the Streets is the launch of Vancouver's first series of Public Pianos! Through collaborations between CityStudio Vancouver and local community associations, these instruments will be free to play and available on the street for anyone to enjoy!

Why Pianos?

This project seeks to inspire creativity by bringing musical instruments to the streets of our City! Public pianos have popped up for short periods of time in numerous major cities around the world, including Montreal, Toronto, London, Munich, and Barcelona... Even Campbell River has one!

A team of students from CityStudio ran a pilot launch of Vancouver's first public piano at McAuley Park (on Kingsway and Fraser) on April 6th, which garnered a flurry of public attention and social media coverage. Responding to the excitement and positive public demand in the project, CityStudio wants to bring more of these pianos to Vancouver's public spaces!

How Do I Play?

- 1) Unlock and Uncover: store the rain cover in the piano bench!
- 2) Play and Enjoy! please share the piano and be mindful of your level of noise!
- 3) Lock and Cover: in the event of rain or during the early evening, please lock up and cover the piano after you've finished!
- 4) Tell your Friends! Share your experience on Instagram using #keys2streets and check us out on Facebook and Twitter! (back page)

How Do I Join In?

We are looking for organizations or individuals who would be interested in adopting pianos after August 24th. The piano would be yours to keep and enjoy, with tuning included after the move.

We are also looking for volunteers and music lovers to partner with people with the equipment and ability to help move these pianos to and from their locations!

If Interested, please feel free to contact us!
